

Statutory Authority

All places that prepare and serve food to the public, other than on an occasional basis, and advertise such service within the meaning of 18 V.S.A. Section 4358 shall, prior to serving food, hold a current annual food license issued by the Department of Health. Each individual food establishment shall require a separate food license, regardless of ownership. This includes, but is not limited to restaurants, food caterers, delis, bakeries, temporary food stands (fair stands), food processors, seafood vendors, hotels, bed and breakfasts, and children's camps. Any facility that advertises lodging to the traveling, transient public must obtain a lodging license.

You are Responsible for Completing the Following Actions

- All establishments (both commercial and home-based) in a municipality must contact their town or city clerk's office for any local zoning restrictions, licensing or permit requirements.
- Prior to new construction, contact the Health Department Food & Lodging Program to arrange a plan review.
- Contact your state Agency of Natural Resources (ANR) Regional Office for their permitting requirements. The building owner must be involved in this part of the process. Your project must have ANR approval before a license to operate your establishment can be issued by the Health Department.
- Review the applicable regulations before submitting your application. The Vermont Department of Health (VDH) regulations for food and lodging establishments can be accessed on the VDH website: healthvermont.gov/food-lodging. You can request paper copies of the regulations by contacting the VDH Food and Lodging Program at (802) 863-7221 or by email at: FoodLodging@vermont.gov.
- Application Instructions: Submit a legible and complete application with a check or money order 30 days before you plan to begin operation. The application will be processed and the local Public Health Inspector will contact you to arrange an opening compliance inspection prior to operation. You will not be approved for operation until a satisfactory compliance inspection has been completed.
