Exemptions

1. Chemical Control Program

Pursuant to 18 V.S.A. §1775(e), manufacturers are exempt from reporting to the Department of Health chemicals that are present as contaminants if the manufacturer implements a manufacturing control program and exercises due diligence to minimize the presence of the contaminant. A chemical control program is a program that includes industry best practices for the minimization of a chemical in a children's product. These practices may include, but are not limited to: methods and procedures for meeting relevant federal regulations; International Standards Organization (ISO) requirements; American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) International standards; and other widely established certification or standards programs. Actions demonstrating due diligence in ensuring the effectiveness of a manufacturing control program may include the following: the use and enforcement of contract specifications, procedures to ensure the quality/purity of feedstock (whether raw or recycled), the use and enforcement of contract specifications for manufacturing process parameters (e.g., drying and curing times when relevant to the presence of high priority chemicals in the finished children's product components), periodic testing for the presence and amount of CHCCs, auditing of contractor or supplier manufacturing processes, and other practices reasonably designed to ensure the manufacturer's knowledge of the presence, use, and amount of CHCCs in its children's product components

2. Certificate of Compliance

Pursuant to 18 V.S.A. §1775 (g), a manufacturer may rely on a certificate of compliance from a supplier to qualify for an exemption from the reporting requirements. A certificate of compliance is a document certified by a competent authority stating that the supplied good or service it covers meets the agreed-upon or required specifications. The certificate of compliance would be expected to state that the product or component does or does not contain a chemical of high concern to children.
